How do we counterbalance the negative energy of the pandemic?
The Futurist Collective looks for answers in Art, Music, and Dance.

The Futurist Collective is pleased to announce Counter Weight is a multidisciplinary group show exploring issues of mental health, identity, and being seen as the Other in New York City during these unprecedented times. The Futurists Collective is comprised of artists Ivan Cofield, Tommy Vo, and Johnny Tang. Their show at One Brooklyn Bridge Park will be on view May 14 - June 7th, with a calendar packed with events to engage the local community through art, music, and dance during their three week run.

The Futurists Collective is a group of three artists based in New York City. Ivan Cofield (painting), Johnny Tang (photography), and Tommy Vo (mixed media) came together from a shared background in dance and hip-hop. Their artwork provides a nuanced reflection of the Other experience. This group aims to create a dialogue within the community through their specific interdisciplinary art practices. Collectively, they have over 30 years of exhibition experience and have had their artwork shared around the world.
